

Feng Shui Store
2 Douglas Road
Aylesbury
Buckinghamshire
HP20 1HW
Great Britain
Tel: (0044) 01296 399100
Fax: (0044) 01296 582889
www.fengshuiweb.co.uk

FENG SHUI
STORE

Please feel free to save this page, email, print and share with your family and friends.

Red envelopes - Ang Pow, laisee, lai see, red packets, hung bao or Hung-Bao

“The best inheritance parents can give their children is a few minutes of their time each day”

© 2009 Updated by Michael Hanna

Are you really prepared for 2009?

2009 壬丑
Cures &
Enhancers!

FENG SHUI
SOFTWARE

2009 壬丑
Animal
Predictions

2009 壬丑
Flying Star
Analysis

Tong
Shu
Software

Ang Pow red envelopes also known as "red packets" "Ang Pow" "laisee" "lai see" "hung bao" or "Hung-Bao". They are considered extremely auspicious to receive as a gift and even more auspicious if they contain money. They are commonly used for Chinese New Year, weddings, birthdays or any other important event.

The image used on the front of a red envelope wish blessings and good wishes of long life, prosperity and good health. Through the years, artists have always found new ways to improve the message of good tidings such as carps swimming amongst flowering lotus, the fabled creatures of dragon and phoenix, Chinese zodiac animals depending on the year it will be used, peonies in full bloom, the three immortals, golden pineapples, Buddha's and children. They are actually very beautiful and the varied designs we have seen over the years have been outstanding. As a company we hand pick every design as the quality and presentation is very important. These are sent free with every order we send containing Chinese i-ching coins for extra luck.

When giving money on festive or auspicious occasions, you should never put money in a white envelope or you would face the resentment of the recipient! Money wrapped in white envelopes is given when the occasion is sad, like funerals, when a gift of money is given to help with the funeral costs. This is called 'Pak Kum' money for the family of the departed. So if you ever come across a Chinese client please think twice about giving his or her fee in a white envelope although in our western countries it would be unlikely to offend.

The two projects below make a lovely job for the young and old, especially for children as it also teaches the cultures of other countries, so if you are a school teacher please feel free to download and use in your classroom. You can download the printer friendly version by clicking this link. This can also be saved to your computer hard drive so you can email onto friends and family. My niece Hannah Sacco printed this one below in black and white and then spent a few hours colouring it in, thank you Hannah for allowing me to show your stunning piece of work.

Handmade from the template below and coloured by my 12 year old niece Hannah.

The story of Ang Pow red envelopes.

The story of "ang pow" dates back to the Sung Dynasty in China. A village called Chang-Chieu was at the time terrorised by a huge demon. No one was capable of defeating it, not even their greatest warriors or statesmen. However, a young orphan, armed with a magical sword inherited from his ancestors, fought the evil demon and eventually killed it. The villagers were triumphant and the elders presented the brave young man with a red envelope (more like a red pouch I would imagine) filled with money for his courage in saving them. Since then, the ang pow has become a part of traditional Chinese customs.

How much do you place inside the red envelope?

It depends on the situation. If you give red envelopes to children for the Chinese New Year, age will be an important factor. Usually the older the children are, the more money they will get. For a child of five years old, two pounds will be fine. The amount contained has to be in even numbers. Even numbers are auspicious and odd numbers are perceived as denoting loneliness. For example, it could be two pounds, ten or twenty pounds. You can amass on New Years day a great deal of money as a child.

We often supply our red envelopes for weddings and if you do attend a Chinese or even a western wedding make a gift of money in the red envelope. But it should be relative to your financial situation and you shouldn't overdo it as it can also be considered as showing off if you give more than you can afford. It is similar for birthdays although the red packets usually contain less money since birthdays are not considered as important as weddings.

Giving red packets to employees prior to the New Year is also very common. This can be either a gift or a bonus. It is also believed that should you bequest them your gift their good fortunes will come back to your company.

The number of coins or notes in the ang pow may take advantage of the Chinese homophones. For instance, you can give a favorable amount ending with eight (8), as it sounds like fortune in Chinese, or nine (9), which sounds like longevity. Four (4) is not a good number to give as it sounds like death. You should always give money in even numbers though as to receive one or three or any other uneven number would be considered unlucky. Although to receive one Chinese i-ching coin in the envelope is considered very lucky.

When are Ang Pows given?

The practice of giving ang pow may be centuries old, but it is still as popular as ever. During Chinese New Year, they are given by married couples to small children, teenagers and unmarried adults. So it helps if you have a rich aunt or uncle as the gifts can be very large. This year Chinese New Year falls on 26th January 2009, more on this below.

They can be given at any time and you do not need a special occasion even, they are considered extremely auspicious just in the fact that they are given and if received you should try and pay some debt of with some of the money received, you should always leave a small part of the money inside the ang pow and place in your purse or handbag.

A small selection below of our shop red envelopes, they really are a work of art and our quality is second to none; the quality is actually very important.

Birthdays:

It is traditional and customary to give red envelopes to parents when their baby celebrates his/her first month. In return, parents distribute to well wishers gifts like red dyed eggs (ang nui), yellow rice (nasi kunyit) with curry chicken, bean cakes (ang ku), Money is usually given as birthday gifts for celebrants of all ages. The elderly also distribute gifts of money to the younger generation when they celebrate, for example, their 70th birthday.

Feng Shui:

Feng Shui supporters believe that a red envelope containing a gold coin (i-ching coin), can bring good luck to the holder when placed in your purse, wallet, accounts books or handbag. They are also used as wish list holders, you write your dreams and aspirations on a piece of red paper and place inside the red envelope and sit back and wait. Some Feng Shui Practitioners even insist on being paid with their cash fee inside a red envelope, this is not something that I adhere to though although a lovely thought when you do receive them.

School activities:

About seven years ago we were contacted by a local primary school who wanted to give all their pupils an Ang Pow red envelope for Chinese New Year, that school and many others have ordered year after year and I personally think that it is a good teacher or parent who gives projects like this as it is good for our children to learn other cultures.

I don't want to make one; I just want to buy them already made:

Oh go on, it can be great fun, I have just spent about five hours writing this article and a further two hours I spent watching my niece Hannah cutting out and colouring her red envelope, it was nice and also lovely to see her enjoying herself and asking questions about them. Actually I have to admit Jo runs a bit of a "sweat shop" here, Hannah regularly helps her out and is one of our cherished team members and this time of the year is a very busy time for us with the Chinese New Year in a few weeks.

If you really want to buy them follow this link you will find them half way down the page:
wealth2.htm

To make your own red envelope you will need:

I have copied below two versions, one you can print straight from your colour printer and the other you can colour in yourself or print onto red paper, this is a nice project to give to children and if you are a school teacher please feel free to print this out and use in your class, all we ask is you do not alter or change any of the text on there.

- A sheet of white paper, red paper or paints/pens for black & white version.
- Scissors
- Pritt glue stick or paper glue.

You should click here first to download the printer friendly version otherwise you will be printing all our banners and wasting your valuable ink cartridge. Print this onto a sheet of white or red paper, Cut out the red envelope and fold it along the dotted lines as shown below.

Straighten the packet out as shown below, and turn it over so you are looking at the side with the image, as in the diagram below.

Now fold over flap A and apply some glue along its right edge. Fold over flap B and press it firmly onto the glued edge of flap A. Apply a little glue to flap D and press it firmly onto flap B & A.

You now have your Chinese red envelope! Flap C is the top and this is where you should place the money in and then seal it after.

Chinese New Year 2009:

Chinese New Year (according to the lunar calendar) starts on the 26th January 2009 (26th day of the year in the Gregorian calendar of 2009) and is celebrated by the Chinese all over the world. It heralds new beginnings and a fresh start. At a social level, it is very much a family affair, a time of reunion, forgiveness, sharing and thanksgiving. In 2009 Chinese New Year falls on Monday January 26th 2009 at 15.55 (pm) China (Lunar calendar), Monday 26th 07.55 United Kingdom, Sunday 25th 23.55 California USA, Monday 26th 08.55 Barcelona Spain, due to time differences around the world Chinese New Year will fall what appears to be a day early in some countries. Below you will find a Chinese New Year world time converter 2009 table to assist you. This is the date you celebrate the Chinese New Year with Ang Pow, fireworks etc and not the date you use to place your 2009 cures and enhancers in Feng Shui (February 4th 2009).

The Lunar Chinese New Year Day is very different from the Solar (Hsia) New Year Day (February 4th 2009). The Lunar Calendar formulates the days of the month according to the cycle of the moon whereas the solar year is governed by the sun. Although the Chinese solar year starts on a different date from the western year, the theory whereby the year is calculated on how long it takes the earth to go round the sun is the same. The lunar cycle lasts approximately 29.5 days and in order that the start of the Lunar New Year is not too far removed from the Solar New Year, the Chinese insert an extra month, this being called an intercalary month, once every few years. This is why Chinese New Year Day falls on a different date in each of the two calendars.

Whilst the solar (Hsia) calendar starts the New Year at the beginning of Spring, which falls normally between the 4th and 5th of February, the lunar (yueh) calendar marks the New Year on the second New moon after the winter solstice. In 2009, Lunar Chinese New Year also called the 'Spring Festival', falls on 26th January 2009 which is the New Year that is celebrated by all ethnic Chinese. The solar New Year (4th February 2009) is not celebrated at all and only used for Feng Shui placement.

© Michael Hanna, Feng Shui Store 2009

Visit the pages below for further details on 2009 Chinese New Year etc.

Chinese New Year 2009  How to make your own Ang Pow  Chinese Talismans for 2009  Chinese animal predictions for 2009  Flying star Xuan Kong 2009  Salt Water cure information  Avoid the fury of the Grand Duke, three killing 2009  Chinese New Year world time converter 2009  2009 Cures and enhancers kits  How to take a compass reading  How to determine your facing direction  Feng Shui software  Feng Shui resource  2009 Tong Shu Almanac Software  Feng Shui Blog  Chinese culture **

Are you really prepared for 2009?

Colour version

Feng Shui Store
www.fengshuiweb.co.uk
01296 399100

Black and white version

© Michael Hanna - Feng Shui Store 2009

The below copyright information does not apply to anyone who wants to copy our content or send to a friend or even store on your computer for their own personal use and development. Please feel free to copy and paste or share with as many people you like. The below is intended for the many people who steal our content and claim it to be their own work.

We are more than happy to share our content; all you need to do is give us credit for our hard work and a link back to our website. Contact michael@fengshuiweb.co.uk for more details.

